

Being a kind critic

Feedback helps us make our work even better.

Good feedback should always be kind, specific, and helpful.

Kind - say things nicely, don't use hurtful words.

Specific - Say exactly what you like or what could be better.

Helpful - Your comment should help your friend improve.

Being a kind critic

What to do:

1. Look carefully at the work you are giving feedback on.
2. Find the parts that are really good and the parts that could be improved.

You could start sentences like...

- “I like how you...”
- “The best part is...”
- “You could try adding...”
- “It would help if...”
- “It might look better if...”
